The Secret Garden

Frances Hodgson Burnett

In the course of her digging with her pointed stick Mistress Mary had found herself digging up a sort of white root rather like an onion. She had put it back in its place and patted the earth carefully down on it and just now wondered if Martha could tell her what it was.

“Martha,” she said, “what are those white roots that look like onions?”

“They’re bulbs,” answered Martha. “Lots o’ spring flowers grow from ‘em. Th’ very little ones are snowdrops and crocuses an’ th’ big ones are narcissus an’ jonquils an’ daffydowndillys. Th’ biggest of all is lillies an’ purple flags. Eh! They are nice. Dickon’s got a whole lot of ‘em planted in our bit o’ garden.”

“Does Dickon know all about them?” asked Mary, a new idea taking possession of her.

“Our Dickon can make a flower grow out of a brick wall. Mother says he just whispers things out o’ th’ ground.”

“Do bulbs live a long time? Would they live years and years if no one helped them?” inquired Mary anxiously.

“They’re things as helps themselves,” said Martha. That’s why poor folk can afford to have ‘em. If you don’t trouble ‘em, most of ‘em’ll work away underground for a lifetime an’ spread out an’ have little ‘uns. There’s a place in th’ park woods here where there’s snowdrops by the thousands. They’re the prettiest sight in Yorkshire when th’ spring comes. No one knows when they was first planted.”

Hapless Hyphens!

The text below is missing all the hyphens. Can you add hyphens in the correct place?

Today was so much fun. We went on an airplane. First of all, we had to go to the check in desk to have our tickets checked. It was really hot in the airport and I was glad I decided to wear a short sleeved top. My three year old brother was playing with his six piece puzzle and giggling happily to himself. A tired looking passer by grunted as they looked at him, they we're obviously quite bad tempered. Finally, the man behind the desk called us forward in a sing song voice. Dad put the suitcases on the conveyor belt and we watched them go through. I couldn't wait for take off. I had never been on a plane before and was puppy like with excitement. The man at the x ray machine smiled at me and said how well behaved I was. Our plane was at gate thirty two, so we made our way there.

Spring in Australia

The Weather

During spring, there is more daylight and each day becomes slightly longer. This is because of the tilt of the Earth's axis.

In spring, the weather is varied. Although there may be some warmer weather, it can also be a wet season. Frost, wind, rain, sun and even snow can occur in spring.

Animals

In spring, many animals and birds reproduce. There is an abundance of food and the days are longer, giving animals a longer time to gather food.

Animals may start to shed their winter coat in preparation for the warmer weather.

Animals that hibernate will start to wake up and become active. During hibernation, an animal's temperature drops, its breathing slows down and its heart rate decreases. Native Australian animals that hibernate include possums, bats and echidnas.

The seasons in Australia happen at different times of the year than in the United Kingdom.

Summer: December, January and February.

Autumn: March, April and May.

Winter: June, July and August.

Spring: September, October and November.

Plants

Plants need water and sunlight to grow. Spring provides the perfect environment for new growth.

Deciduous trees (trees that lose their leaves during autumn and throughout winter) will grow their leaves back, however, almost all native trees in Australia are evergreens.

Flowers may also start to bloom with the warmer weather. Fruits, such as apples, pears, avocados, lemons, mandarins and strawberries, begin to grow.
